

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for my Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHETTE JEFFERSON, 708 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it has saved many women from surgical operations.

COULD NOT CORNER MIKE

Mr. Flaherty Ready With Explanation For Failure to Keep Awake in Church.

One Saturday evening Mrs. Flaherty said to her husband, who is a successful contractor: "Mike, Father Burke is to preach tomorrow at St. Patrick's church, and you've often told me you wanted to hear him."

"Yes, Jane, I do want to hear him. They say he's a fine speaker."

"But, for pity's sake, Mike, if you do come with me, keep awake! You know you're always falling asleep during the sermons."

"Till do my best, Jane."

Next day, when Father Burke began to preach, Mike watched him for five minutes, and then dropped off to sleep. When they were back home Jane gave Mike a tongue lashing.

"Well, Jane," said Mike in self-defense, "it's just this way. When I engage a new hand I watch him to see if he's on the job. As soon as I find he's efficient and hard-working I don't bother about him any more. Now, as soon as Father Burke began I saw he was right on to his job, and so I didn't worry about him. And then, in spite of myself, I let go."—Everybody's Magazine.

Childlike Nature.

"Do you mean to tell me that tenderfoot pulled a gun 'cause he thought you had stacked the cards?"

"That's what I said," replied Pinte Pete.

"You told me the game was going to be like taking candy from a child."

"Yes. But some children has awful dispositions."

His Tree.

Bill—Has he a family tree?

Jill—Oh, yes.

"What is it?"

"Well, it's of the nut-bearing family."

Cuba has the largest orange grove in the world, covering 2,000 acres.

Why That Lame Back?

Morning lameness, sharp twinges when bending, or an all-day backache; each is cause enough to suspect kidney trouble. Get after the cause. Help the kidneys. We Americans go it too hard. We overdo, overeat and neglect our sleep and exercise and so we are fast becoming a nation of kidney sufferers. 72% more deaths than in 1880 is the 1910 census story. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands recommend them.

A Kansas Case

W. H. Siddons, 308 S. Main St., Wellington, Kan., says: "My kidneys were in bad shape and caused me no end of trouble. I had to get up often at night to pass the kidney secretions and my back pained so severely I couldn't sit around without misery. When I got up from a chair I had to take hold of something for support. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made me strong and well."

Temperance Notes

BREWERIES NOT ADVERTISED.

At the recent national convention of advertising men held at Philadelphia the delegates from Milwaukee conspicuously omitted all reference to the product which made their city famous. A mammoth banner stretched in front of their headquarters informed the public that Milwaukee produces $76,000,000 in iron, steel and machinery each year; $45,000,000 in leather and leather products, and various other useful commodities but there was nothing about its breweries.

"Talk to the forty delegates from that city and you'll notice the same thing," says the North American of Philadelphia. "They'll throw up their hats over their 'largest tanneries'—and not a word about beer. They'll become enthusiastic over their 3,000 manufacturing plants without mentioning the breweries. Talk to a member of the Milwaukee Ad. club, and he'll fill your ears full of the wonderful achievements of the brewery. There was not a placard or a printed page in evidence at the convention on Milwaukee's much-vaunted 'temperance drink.'"

The same thing was noticeable in the literature distributed. Banks published folders advertising the city as a home for business and omitted mention of the breweries. There was not a placard or a printed page in evidence at the convention on Milwaukee's much-vaunted 'temperance drink.'"

MODERN NEWSPAPER MAN.

The 400 newspaper correspondents attending the national Democratic convention in St. Louis were invited by Mr. August A. Busch, head of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing company, to a mint julep function at his home. Less than 100 accepted, and a score of automobiles the host had engaged for the occasion went empty. One of those who declined the hospitality wrote Mr. Busch as follows:

"The time has passed when newspaper men can keep the pace of the fastest men in the world and meddle with even the mildest of intoxicants. This fact is recognized in the most practical way by a large majority of the craft. During last week at Chicago, when the pressure of work was tremendous and the weather abominable, I was in constant contact with the same body of correspondents who are here today, and in all that time I did not see even one under the influence of drink. I hope to see the time come when men of my calling will no longer be exposed to the dangers which beset the now recognized standards of hospitality, but that the open-handed friendliness which I know you feel toward your friends and mine will find some other form of expression."

HAVE NO USE FOR LIQUOR.

"The position of our organization is well known," says Mr. W. S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. "We fight the liquor evil perhaps as hard as any place of the churches. Liquor has no place in our modern railroading. There is no class of men in the world of whom more is required and who should have clearer heads than the men in charge of the transportation services of this country. Those of us who have been in the railroad game for years know the infinitesimal space of time that spells the difference between safety and disaster. There is no question but that liquor does slow down the brain action and the man in the cab of the locomotive and the man in charge of the train, even though he has no regard for his own safety, has no business to use it in any way; by so doing he endangers others."

BELIEVED IN PROHIBITION.

The late James J. Hill, the railway magnate, was an advocate of national prohibition and would shortly have made a public statement endorsing it, was the assertion made by Prof. Irving Fisher at St. Louis, when he brought before the resolutions committee of the Democratic party the matter of a prohibition plank in the party platform. "I received a letter from Mr. Hill," said Professor Fisher, "in which he declared that the greatest factor in the promotion of crime, disease and poverty in this nation was the liquor traffic, and that he believed national prohibition was the best solution of the problem."

"BEER SMELL IS OUT."

This is the sign, in big display type, over a shoe shop in the city of Denver. The proprietor occupies one of the buildings vacated by a saloon-keeper on January 1. He calls himself "the shoe merchant extraordinary of Denver, Omaha and Lincoln," and he urges former saloon patrons "not to cry over spilt booze," but to patronize Budd's Shoe Shop.

PLEA TO SOLDIERS.

Circulars have been sent to the Austrian soldiers urging them not to drink alcohol, "as they make men sluggish and incapable of marching, interfere with good shooting, and render one more susceptible to infectious diseases."

BEER CONSUMPTION.

During 1915, Americans drank 2,136,387,972 fewer pints of beer than in 1914. These bottles would make a column 303,447 miles high, according to the Michigan Campaign Manual.

LIFE IN MOSCOW.

Life proceeds much as usual in Moscow, the commercial capital of Russia, and despite the rise in prices, trade in general is good and the buying power of the people was never so great—this latter fact being accounted for generally by the prohibition of vodka.—Associated Press Correspondent.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 8

PAUL BEFORE FELIX.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 24. GOLDEN TEXT—Herein I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and men always.—Acts 24:16.

This is a court scene, and it might be well with certain classes to introduce the lesson by describing such a gathering. The lesson occurred five days after Paul reached Jerusalem, bearing the collection for the poor. The place, Caesarea, was the Roman capital of Judea.

I. The Prisoner's Examination (vv. 1-9). In addition to the Roman governor, Felix, attired in his gorgeous official regalia, on a platform nearby, were the high priest of the Jews, in his highly colored and jeweled robes, the lawyer, Tertullus, in his Roman toga, and the elders of the Sanhedrin who had come down from Jerusalem to be witnesses against Paul. Of Tertullus it was said that, by his persuasive tongue, he could make white seem black, and he could therefore more easily make it appear that Paul was "a dangerous and turbulent and renegade Jew." The judge, Felix, was an exceptionally bad governor, who two years later was recalled by Nero to Rome. The inference of verse two is that Paul was an inciter of rebellion and robberies, but the exact charges were three-fold: (See vv. 5-6) (a) that Paul was a mover of insurrection; (b) that he was a ringleader of a sect of Nazarenes who were causing trouble in the province; and (c) that he had profaned the Jewish temple at Jerusalem. The charge of insurrection would be especially obnoxious to Felix who had just been praised for keeping peace in his dominion. That of being a leader of heresy was not serious, for the Romans had no desire to interfere between one Jewish sect and another, but it led to the last one, viz., profaning the temple. The Romans had legalized the Jewish ritual, and for Paul to profane the holy place would be a serious outrage. The weakness of Tertullus' case was that he produced no evidence to support his charges. The accusers were there, but they had no witnesses.

11. The Prisoner's Defense (vv. 10-21). Paul cheerfully made his defense, for he knew the Jews and their customs, and that Felix had married a Jewess. (v. 24). We might consider this defense first negatively and then positively. On the negative side, Paul answers each charge separately. In the first place there had not been time for him to cause an insurrection (v. 11). Going back over these days: (1) his arrival in Jerusalem (21:15); (2) his appearance before James (21:18); (3, 4, 5 and 6), the days of his vow (Ch. 21:26, 27); (7) his arrest; (8) his appearance before the Sanhedrin; (9) the conspiracy and his deliverance; (10, 11, 12 and 13) in Caesarea (See Ch. 24:1). Paul's statement showed that the whole story of his experience was fresh in the memories of both friends and foes. It was the Jews who did the stirring up. Paul answers the second charge by acknowledging (vv. 14-16) that he belonged to the Christian way of salvation, but denied that this was heresy. Paul was a true Jew and a good Pharisee, for (1) he worshiped the same God (v. 14); (2) he believed in the Jewish law and prophets. From them he knew he could prove that Jesus was the Messiah. (3) He agreed with the Pharisees (v. 15) in hope toward God, a resurrection from the dead and immortal life. Paul's life was "void of offense" toward God in heart and worship, and toward men as shown in good deeds. It was for this that he exercised himself. Literally, he worked upon the raw material, disciplining and training it. Paul answers the third charge by a simple denial that he had actually taken place, and calls for witnesses. Positively, Paul explains that he had followed the God of his fathers, that he believed in fulfilled prophecy—the resurrection of Jesus from the dead—that he came to Jerusalem with alms for the poor, and, as before the council, he stands upon his integrity.

11. The Judge's Delay (vv. 22-27). Felix had a "more perfect knowledge of that way." We believe he had secured this knowledge from Philip, the evangelist, and from Cornelius, the Roman centurion, both of whom lived in Caesarea. By deferring his decision, Felix avoided an outrageous injustice to Paul, and at the same time gave serious offense to the troublesome Jews who knew of his evil conduct. From verse twenty-three we see that Paul was given liberty, literally such indulgence in freedom as would be consistent with his safety. Luke, the physician, and Philip, the evangelist, visited him here, bringing food, books and letters. After a time Felix and his wife, Drusilla, sent for Paul to talk with him "concerning the faith in Christ." Drusilla was a daughter of Herod Agrippa I (vv. 12-23), and a sister of Herod II (See Ch. 26). She was a beautiful woman, much younger than Felix who was possibly about sixty years of age. She and her only child perished in the eruption of Vesuvius A. D. 79. Paul before Felix emphasized three points: (1) Righteousness—right principles, right conduct, integrity and justice—duties which man owes to man. (2) Paul reasoned of temperance, literally self-control. Temperance, as here used, is ability to guide and restrain one's emotions and appetites; having the passions and powers of the soul under the control of reason and conscience. (3) Paul preached of a judgment to come, where the rewards for virtue and the punishment for sin and crime would be manifest.

Ready to Preach the Gospel

By REV. W. W. KETCHUM, Director of the Practical Work Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—So as much as in me I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also.—Rom. 1:16.

The Greek term which the word ready translates, does not have in it so much the idea of preparedness as it does eagerness. It gives us a picture of the apostle standing as it were on tip-toe facing the imperial city, his countenance expressing the passion of his heart to preach the Gospel to the people of that city.

I can imagine as the apostle stands like a hound at leash, eager to be off, someone tugging at his cloak and saying, "Don't go to Rome, Paul, to preach the Gospel of the cross. They will laugh your story to scorn. Rome, remember, was the home of Cicero, and his orations are still studied there, and Seneca is discoursing in the streets. Go to them, Paul, with a little sociology, religious pathology and ethical culture, but not with the word of the cross." And Paul answers back: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first and also to the Greek."

There are people today who tell us that the Gospel of the cross doesn't meet the modern mind. Well, I may know little of the modern mind, but I do know a great deal about the modern heart, and one thing is this: that it is still "deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked," and thank God, I know what can meet its needs and that is the cross of Christ. The trouble, friends, is not with our heads but with our hearts; let them be cleansed by the blood of Christ and the modern mind has no difficulty in understanding the story of the cross. Problems there may be, but the heart that knows the cleansing power of the blood clings in simple faith to the Cross of Christ.

Then there are those who say that the Cross of Christ does not meet the problem of today. What problems are there today that were not the problems of yesterday? What about the moral corruption of the times? Is it any worse than it was in Paul's day? When the apostle was eager to go to Rome, lecherous, reprobate Nero, who had sunk almost to the nethermost hell, was on the throne. Yet Paul was not desirous of going to Rome with a moral mud-scoop. But with the Gospel of Christ. He knew what some moderns do not know, that reformation follows regeneration, and so he was eager to preach in that corrupt city the Gospel of the cross. What a lesson to some would-be preachers of today who, not knowing the power of the Gospel to regenerate society, are trying with their puny scoops to cleanse the cesspools of iniquity, when they have at their command the dynamite of God. We might just as well try to batter down a fortress with a popgun and toy pistol as to attempt to overcome the forces of evil in the world by any moral reformation which leaves out the cross of Christ.

But what about a world immersed in pleasure? Will the Gospel reach such a world? As Paul stood facing Rome, mad with pleasure, he said, "I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also." And yet the city was almost altogether given over to pleasure. During the reign of Claudius, the gladiatorial games became almost an insane frenzy and in Nero's time, however, was eager to go there with the Gospel. It is a great challenge that the pleasure-loving world gives the preachers of today. How shall they meet it? Shall they, in extremity, try something else besides the Gospel, or is the Gospel still the power of God unto salvation, even unto a pleasure-loving world? One of the saddest sights to behold is a ministry that has abandoned the Gospel and substituted in the place a sociological shovel and a pathological plaster. If he ever laughs it laughs at such a substitution, for it knows that makeshifts will never meet the world's need and defeat hell.

Come on, preachers, the world challenges us, let us meet the challenge with Paul's "I am ready to preach the Gospel." What Gospel? Why, the Gospel of the cross, of course, for there is none other. And with Paul let us say, we are not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. Why not ashamed? "Because it is the dynamite of God." That means it has in itself the power to do business for God. No wonder Paul, facing intellectual, corrupt, pleasure-loving Rome, said, "I am ready, I am not ashamed to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also."

Almost Perfect Prayer. The day is thine, thou Lord of all who toil, for all eternity belongeth unto thee; thou hast but loaned it unto me. Master Craftsman, who knearest on earth the sweetness of earning thy daily bread, help me to use this day worthily; until the tasks that come from thy hands are done and thou bliddest me lay aside my tools, take up my pilgrim's staff, and fare forth on the journey that leadeth to thee. Amen.

Properly, there is no other knowledge but that which is got by working; the rest is yet all a hypothesis of knowledge—a thing to be argued of in schools; a thing floating in the clouds, in endless logic-vortices, till we try and fix it.—Carlyle.

BASEBALL EDITOR IS HURT

Makes Unkind Comment on Question Asked by Sweet Girl Viewing National Game.

Gilligan, the Demon Swatter, stepped up to the plate.

It was the last half of the ninth inning with the score tied and two men out.

Gilligan swung at the first ball and missed.

The next one was a ball, and the next and the next.

The umpire called the next one a strike, though 20,000 fans disagreed with him.

"This one tells the tale," said everybody to his next neighbor.

Gilligan gripped his bat firmly, dug his spikes into the ground and swung with all his might.

Crack! The ball sped as if shot out of a cannon, far over the center field fence, while the Demon trotted round the bases amid the plaudits of the multitude.

When the excitement had subsided a bit, a girl—Oh, she was a beautiful girl. You ought to have seen her—well, anyhow, this girl touched her escort timidly on the arm and asked in dulcet tones:

"Does the batter have to pay for the ball when he loses it over the fence like that?"

And yet some people thought women should be allowed to vote.—New York World.

Reasonable Precaution.

The lady was complaining to her dairymaid some time ago regarding the quality of his milk.

"Short 'o' grass feed, mum; short 'o' grass feed this time 'o' year," said the jocular milkman. "Bless you, them cows 'o' mine are just as sorry about it as I am. I often stands and watches 'em cryin', reglar cryin', mum, because they feel as how their milk don't do 'em credit. You don't believe it?"

"Oh, yes, I believe it," said the lady; "but I wish in future you'd see that they don't drop their tears into our can."

Ideal Wife.

Miss Marion Pomeroy Smith, the Cape Cod heiress who has just won a legal contest for the control of her huge fortune, believes in women's rights.

"There will be fewer divorces," she said to a reporter, "when men treat women as their equals."

"Do you know the kind of wife my ideal is?" a married man once said to me.

"Of course I do," said I. "Your ideal wife is the kind that's tickled to death over a birthday present of a bag of flour."

WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS.

Every woman takes great pride in having her home well kept, in having the family wash done early in the week. Good bluing is needed even more than good soap. Be sure to use Red Cross Blue—Adv.

Forgot Them.

"Mandy," said the lady of the house indignantly, "did you steal my tan silk stockings?"

"Lor', Miss Edith, how you done talk. Me steal? Poor old Mandy never does steal nothing."

"How does it come I found them in your room behind the trunk?"

"Now, Miss Edith, ain't you jes the smartest, though, finding them stockings there when I done forgot where it was I put them. No'm, I didn't steal 'em; I jes forgot them."

Near Experience.

"Have you had an experience in this floating hotel business?"

"In a way. I once boarded a vessel and lodged a complaint there."

An Improvement.

Mrs. Josiah Cowles, the new president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, was talking in New York about dress.

"Women, once they get interested in our movement," she said, "dress more sensibly. They give less thought to dress. I may claim, in fact—"

Mrs. Cowles smiled.

"I may claim, in fact," she ended, "that these women start making their own clothes and stop picking their friends' clothes to pieces."

No Joke.

"I need a lot of new things this fall," began Mrs. Wife. "We have to get a new rug for the dining room and some curtains for the living room. We need some new dishes, too. And besides, I haven't a thing to wear. I've got to get a new evening dress and a street dress, and a couple of new hats, and I haven't a pair of shoes to my name, and—"

It isn't any joke—that's all.

Conspicuous Example.

Like A Boy at 50 Bubbling Over

With Vitality—Taking Iron Did It

Doctors say Nuxated Iron is greatest of all strength builders—

Often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks time.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron. He had filled his health; at 46, careworn and in bad health; at 48, a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went in to the affray, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M. D.

NOTE.—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 50 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by most druggists. If your druggist or general store is without a supply, ask them to get it for you.—Adv.
